WELCOME!

I'm pleased to welcome you to the 2018 Tacoma Film Festival as its new Director. I am deeply impressed by what The Grand and TFF have built over the years and happy to join the team. As I got to know The TFF/Grand Cinema team and the Tacoma film community, I sensed an open-mindedness, love for film as an art form, willingness to explore the contours of what cinema can do, and deep community support for the festival. I also thank the Grand Cinema/Tacoma Film Festival team and board for their warm welcome to the city.

We're very enthusiastic about this year's slate of features, short films, and virtual reality experiences, as well as a ton of exciting workshops, panels, and special events. The festival includes many regionally-made works like our opening night film Prospect (shot in Washington). We are also thrilled to welcome original members of the legendary Tacoma band The Sonics to help present our closing night film, The US Premiere of BOOM, a documentary about the group's enormous influence on rock music around the world.

We live in a world flooded with visuals. We strongly believe that the cinema is the unparalleled way to watch film, together, as a community. Tacoma Film Festival is our nonprofit, volunteer-supported way we show what film can do. Let's spend a week together being delighted, moved, and transformed.

HAL ASHBY SPOTLIGHT

TFF is proud to present a focus on Hal Ashby, screening Harold and Maude, Being There, and the career-spanning documentary Hal. Ashby (1929-1988) is one of the most influential directors of the 1970s wave of "New Hollywood" filmmakers who were making modestly budgeted, sociallyrealist films. Ashby's work has had a profound impact on cinema and influenced generations of filmmakers. His films blend cutting humor, insightful and poignant writing, and a true love for the complexity of the human spirit. In addition to Harold and Maude (1971) and Being There (1979), Ashby was best known for The Last Detail (1973), Shampoo (1975) and

PIONEERS: FIRST WOMEN FILMMAKERS

WEDNESDAY OCTOBER 10 2:15 PM

THE GRAND CINEMA #1

SPONSORED BY:

88 MIN Before Hollywood hardened into an assembly-line behemoth and boys' club, women worked regularly as writers, producers, and directors, instrumental in shaping the language of film as we know it. Bringing together new restorations, this program spotlights the daring, innovative, and trailblazing work of the first female filmmakers and restores their centrality to cinema's creation.

1. MABEL AND FATTY'S WASH DAY

US | 13 MIN | 1916 | Mabel Normand

Mabel Normand, one of the great comedians of the silent era, stars with Fatty Arbuckle in this slapstick comedy.

2. BREAD

US | 16 MIN | 1918 | Ida May Park

Ida May Park was a screenwriter and director in the silent era. She wrote for more than 50 films between 1914 and 1930, and directed 14 films between 1917 and 1920. Bread is a socially engaged drama which follows the fate of a woman struggling to pull herself out of poverty as she's ruthlessly exploited by a string of men.

3. ETHNOGRAPHIC FILMS BY ZORA NEALE HURSTON US | 12 MIN | 1929 | Zora Neale Hurston

Best known as a novelist and playwright, these eight brief films - Baseball Crowd, Dancing Capers, Children Dancing, Girl Rocking, Children Play, Man with Axe, Children's Games, and Baptism - all date from 1929 when Hurston was training as an anthropologist and conducting research in Florida.

4. SUSPENSE

US | 11 MIN | 1913 | Lois Weber, Phillips Smalley

The story of Suspense, a one-reel thriller, is a simple one - a tramp threatens a mother and child, while the father races home to their rescue - but the techniques used to tell it are complex. Weber and Smalley employ a dizzying array of formal devices, including the first ever use of split-screen.

5. THE CURSE OF QUON GWON: WHEN THE FAR EAST MINGLES WITH THE WEST

35 MIN | 1916 | Marion E. Wong

Filmed in 1916 and long thought lost, these two surviving reels of the original 7 or 8 represent the earliest known Chinese American feature film and it is also one of the earliest films directed by a woman, Marion E. Wong.

A healthy life isn't one-dimensional. Neither is a healthy business.

Professional liability
Business interruption coverage

Emergency evacuation expenses

Building ordinance and increased cost of construction

Cyber Liability

Billing Errors and Omissions

Earthquake and Flood

Workers' Compensation cost containment programs

Safety and injury illness prevention programs

Clinical risk management consulting Fitness classes, field trips and great meals are just a few of the ways senior living communities help their residents thrive. These days, it takes the same kind of comprehensive insurance approach to keep your business healthy and strong. At Propel, our team of Senior Living experts can work together to deliver a thorough program that covers every aspect of your business—including property, professional liability, workers' comp and more. Don't settle for insurance that leaves you exposed. Talk with experts who understand the complete Senior Living picture.
